

The future of Democracy as we know it is threatened by those who continuously attempt to force their ideology into American minds using television and radio as the means to communicate their message. In living rooms across America are people who feel exasperated and threatened by the falsehoods and outright lies propagated by right-wing conglomerates such as Sinclair Broadcasting and the FOX cable news channel. This is dishonest and clearly profit-motivated, and these media outlets should be held accountable for such activities. Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
